

MAJOR MOVES · VOLUME ONE

YOU ARE THE SYSTEM

If everything stops when you stop—what exactly have you built?

MAJOR DREAM WILLIAMS

Most founders think they have a time problem.

They buy planners. They wake earlier. They get ruthless with the calendar, and none of it holds, because it was never a time problem. It is a structure problem.

There is a difference between being busy and being load-bearing. Busy means your day is full. Load-bearing means the whole thing falls down when you step away.

This is a short book about the second one — why capable people become the narrowest part of their own business, why it feels like competence while it happens, and what to hand over first.

It comes with a workbook, five exercises and one assignment you can finish this week.

Major Dream Williams was born in New York City, raised in The Bronx and Mount Vernon, and shaped by a Jamaican immigrant family. Founder of AMA Solutions Corp and architect of Foundry OS, he builds systems organised around one principle: ownership over dependency.

ISBN / BARCODE RESERVED

If everything stops when you stop — what exactly have you built?

YOU ARE THE SYSTEM

MAJOR DREAM WILLIAMS

Most founders think they have a time problem.

They buy planners. They wake earlier. They get ruthless with the calendar, and none of it holds, because it was never a time problem. It is a structure problem.

There is a difference between being busy and being load-bearing. Busy means your day is full. Load-bearing means the whole thing falls down when you step away.

This is a short book about the second one — why capable people become the narrowest part of their own business, why it feels like competence while it happens, and what to hand over first.

It comes with a workbook, five exercises and one assignment you can finish this week.

Major Dream Williams was born in New York City, raised in The Bronx and Mount Vernon, and shaped by a Jamaican immigrant family. Founder of AMA Solutions Corp and architect of Foundry OS, he builds systems organised around one principle: ownership over dependency.

ISBN / BARCODE RESERVED